

Emergency Care Data Set (pseudonymised patient data) privacy notice

Telstra Health UK processes patient data to help healthcare organisations achieve sustainable improvements in their performance. This notice explains more about how we use your personal information as a data controller. Specifically it describes how we process the Emergency Care Data Set (ECDS) supplied under licence and disseminated directly to us by NHS Digital.

We cannot identify you in the ECDS that we hold but it is produced by NHS Digital using data about NHS patients.

What information we hold about you

Our tools and services use ECDS to help healthcare customers improve their services. It is the national data set for urgent and emergency care. Your details will be included in this data set if you have received emergency care from the NHS in England. It is special category data relating to health.

More information about ECDS can be found here. You can manage your NHS personal data choices here.

We hold a pseudonymised version of ECDS. It does not include your NHS number. We cannot identify individual patients from the pseudonymised ECDS that we hold.

How we use your information

We present informatics, insights and analysis to healthcare customers using our tools and services. These are described on our website. Customers use our services for a number of purposes including to:

- Assess and manage clinical quality and patient safety within NHS Organisations
- Identify pathways where there is potential for improvement
- Identify areas of best practice either within the Provider Trust or local/national health economies
- Better understand how they compare to other Provider Trusts with similar case mixes
- Identify improvements in operational efficiency
- Understand patient outcomes
- Identify and understand market activity
- Monitor the impact of implemented changes
- Identify variations in outcomes

We link ECDS to the HES and CRD data that we receive under agreement with NHS Digital. This provides NHS customers with a more complete view of care to identify areas for improvement. We also use the data to publish articles and infographics to broaden public understanding.

ECDS is provided to us by NHS Digital under licence and under sections 261(1) and 261(2)(b)ii) of the Health and Social Care Act 2012.

Under the UK General Data Protection Regulation (UK GDPR) we must identify specific legal bases for collecting and using your data.

We process ECDS under the following legal bases:

- It is necessary for the purpose of our legitimate interests and those of our NHS customers. Our legitimate interest is in being able to provide tools and services that will benefit healthcare organisations. We have a legitimate interest in being able to offer a commercial service that is based on a trusted dataset. It is also in the interests of the NHS, patients and the public as a whole, because it brings benefits and improvements to health and social care. Without the processing of this data we would not be able to deliver these benefits. This would be to the detriment of healthcare professionals and patients.
- It is necessary for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes. It is proportionate to the aim pursued, respects the essence of the right to data protection and provides for suitable and specific measures to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the data subject.

We only process ECDS under the terms of our data sharing agreement with NHS Digital. The processing is subject to additional safeguards, in particular the technical and organisational measures that fall under the scope of our independently and externally audited information security management system.

Information we share with other organisations

Our NHS customers can access a secure portal to see ECDS data relating to their service. This is at record level. Though we cannot identify you in the data your healthcare provider will be able to do so. They can also see aggregated data relating to other organisations (their peers).

Our NHS customers can also use our bespoke services to receive reports, analysis and visualisations. We also use the data to publish reports and articles that aim to increase the public understanding of health and social care. We may also work with private companies to provide them with reports and analysis. Any information shared in this way will be at a high level so that individuals cannot be identified.

Information only processed in the UK

We process the patient data we receive from NHS Digital in the UK.

How long we keep your information
